14 mills to be on Wayne ballot

Members of the Wayne City Council have unanimously approved ballot language for the Aug. 2 primary election asking voters to approve a 14 mill levy for public safety and allow the city to join a public safety authority. The 14-mills would be levied against property in the city through 2034 and would generate about $4.9 million in tax revenue the first year, according to official estimates.

Officials have said that the general operating millage levied against property in the city would be rolled back as a partial offset to the 14-mill levy, if approved.

The authority, the South Macomb Oakland Regional Authority or SMORSA, currently has two members, Hazel Park and Eastpointe. Voters in those communities would have to approve Wayne as a member to finalize the financing plan. The authority collects no fees and takes no compensation. All tax monies collected are returned to the individual municipal members.

The city continues to face a $2 million budget deficit and is expected, according to analysts, to run out of money during the next budget year. The general fund millage in the city is already at the maximum amount and joining the authority is a means of financing both public safety and other general city services.

Mayor Susan Rowe said that the city would consider the amount of the general fund rollback as soon as the budget was finalized. She also said that a citizens committee would be providing information to voters regarding the authority with town hall meetings and presentations.

School clinic dedicated to total well-being of teens

Sometimes the most difficult problems facing high school students have nothing to do with classroom tests or homework assignments.

Many of the problems confronting these young people are far more personal and can have life-altering consequences. Like a ninth-grader who finds herself being socially pressured into a sexual relationship, a 14-year-old being mercilessly bullied or the high school junior who is suffering a severe sore throat and has no way to get to a doctor and no means to pay for treatment.

The answers and help for these students and many others is as close as a quiet section of Romulus High School where they, and young people up to the age of 21 from anywhere in Wayne County, can go for confidential counseling and treatment of medical and situational problems. The clinic, officially known as the Beaumont Teen Health Center-Romulus, offers help to these students from a select staff of health professionals dedicated to improving the lives of the young people they see every day.

Clinic Director Jeff Cook explained that the high school facility is state funded and has been open for about 18 months now after regaining grant money lost in 2011.

"We serve anybody in Wayne County up to the age of 21," he said. "We treat minor physical illnesses provide vaccinations and do a lot of counseling for young people."

The clinic is a safe haven where help for issues such as depression, suicidal thoughts, academic, sexual and family abuse or dysfunction situations can be discussed with a counselor either in a single session or ongoing visits.

Rachel Wallner, one of the social workers at the clinic, said that the staff members often find that the medical, family and physical situations of a student are all in need of attention. Sometimes a physical symptom is a sign of a more serious issue, something the clinic is equipped to handle either with the professionals on staff or with a referral to a more specialized provider.

> We treat minor physical illnesses provide vaccinations and do a lot of counseling for young people.

"Do they have enough food, are there utilities, like water, in the home, is this an abuse situation?" she said. "We need to evaluate and consider a lot of possibilities."

Nurse Practitioner Lynn Lawlor handles most of the physical or medical issues that may bring young people to the clinic. She said they do a lot of inoculations at the high school facility and that their main focus is prevention. That prevention includes issues as serious as teen pregnancy and sexually transmitted disease.

"We do not hand out condoms or birth control," she said, "but we do have resources to help with any problems the patients have. We can help them. We can find a way.

"Confidentiality is an issue," she said. "Obviously, we always attempt to involve the parents and advise the kids to talk to their mother about the issue, whatever it is. I'm on the phone to mothers nearly constantly."

Lawlor said the focus is always to attempt to involve the parents if there is a medical problem. State and federal laws, however, are strict about what can and cannot be revealed to a parent or guardian and conversely what the law requires must be revealed, depending on age guidelines. "We keep things confidential if that is what the student wants us to do, unless there is a danger to them," she said.

Lawlor and Cook agreed that sometimes it is a fine line to walk, but that their main concern is always the welfare of the patients.

Students and other patients at the clinic are greeted at the reception desk by office manager Jennifer Hall who helps them fill out the necessary paperwork and offers a lot of gentle reassurance about the help available. Hall tries to determine the underlying reasons, if any, for a student's visit, while protecting their privacy.

That's a big job, considering the clinic also deals with issues including mood disorders, addiction to drugs, cigarettes or alcohol, depression, sexual situations or disease, pregnancy testing, and abuse issues.

"It's almost always not just one problem, but six. We work

Plymouth city commissioner seeks state term

Plymouth City Commissioner Colleen Pobur will seek the office of state representative from the 20th District in the November election.

Pobur, 57, announced her candidacy Monday morning at the Plymouth Library.

She has lived in Plymouth for more than two decades and prior to her current term, served eight years on the Plymouth City Commission, including four years as mayor pro tem. She has also served on the Plymouth Redevelopment Authority and Plymouth Economic Development Corp.

Pobur said her campaign would be based on three key elements; education, support for sustained business and transparency and accountability.

During her professional career, she directed the concessions development program for the McNamara Terminal at Detroit Metro Airport and was appointed to the Michigan Liquor Control Commission in 2008 by then Gov. Jennifer Granholm. She said she has traveled the state "from one end to the other" and "understands how state government works."

"One important thing," said Pobur, "is public education and I'm going to work hard to bolster higher education," she said.

"I consider the people of Plymouth to be my family," Pobur said. "Plymouth is really a rare organization to work in. Everyone respects everyone. That's one of the things I want to bring forward as a state rep," she added.

Pobur said she feels current State Rep. Kurt Heise who is term limited did "a good job."

Relay for Life Belleville seeking 'walkers'

The American Cancer Society is seeking teams, survivors, caregivers, and other volunteers for the upcoming Relay For Life of Belleville, which is taking place from noon until midnight May 14 in downtown Belleville when teams of friends, families, churches, clubs, and businesses camp out in downtown Belleville.

Participants take turns walking around the "track" in order to celebrate cancer survivors and their caregivers, remember those who have lost their lives to this disease, and fight back against cancer.

The life-saving dollars raised by participants in Relay For Life will help the American Cancer Society achieve its mission of preventing cancer, saving lives, and diminishing suffering from cancer, through research, education, advocacy, and service, a spokesperson noted.

Teams and those interested in learning more about Relay For Life are welcome at team captain meetings and events planned for 7-8 p.m. May 2 and May 9 at Belleville High School.

"It is never too late to get involved in the fight against cancer," the spokesperson said.

Survivors will be honored with a luncheon during the event. Each survivor can invite one caregiver and will receive a free t-shirt and a gift bag. There will be activities for survivors and caregivers to enjoy all day long. Those interested in being honored as a survivor or caregiver should contact Katherine Fitzpatrick at Katherine.Fitzpatrick@cancer.org or (586) 817-0478.

together to help the student. That is our main focus," Lawlor said.

"We never turn anybody away. Never," Cook added. "If they have insurance, we take it. We never ask a student for a co-pay. If there is no insurance and there is no means of payment, we provide treatment. That's what we are here for. There are no financial barriers to treatment," he said.

The clinic serves about 500 patients annually right now, sometimes 15 in a day and sometimes only one. Funding is provided through the state but comes through what is still known as the Oakwood Foundation, a 501c3 which is part of the Beaumont Health System. The Romulus Public School District provides the office space and utilities for the clinic operation at no cost to the facility.

The clinic is also part of a current state research project to evaluate the impact of the treatment provided on academic performance, attendance and general student well being.

Pat Oleksiak, the data coordinator, said that the Romulus clinic is one of four in Michigan in the survey of students in ninth, tenth and eleventh grades.

"The state wants to find out how the students utilize the clinic and use the data to provide funding for more clinics," he said. "We hope to prove that the availability of medical and psychological counseling leads to better academic performance, better attendance and better outcomes." His daughter, Kate Oleksiak, is a social worker at the clinic who handles issues including pregnancy prevention and sexual identity issues.

Medical services available in addition to vaccinations include hearing and vision screenings, glucose and hemoglobin testing and treatment for some physical ailments, like sore throats or asthma attacks. Athletic physical examinations can be done there and seventh-grade students who need immunizations or boosters can have them done at the school clinic.

"We kind of urge the students to come in for a physical once a year, so we can do a sort of motivational interview and they know we are here for them if they need us," Lawlor said.

The clinic is open from 7:30 a.m. until 4 p.m. Monday, Wednesday and Thursday; from 7:30 a.m. until 6:30 p.m. Tuesday and from 7:30 a.m. until noon on Friday.

4th of July parade entries are sought

The Northville Community Foundation is searching for Olympic athletes to help celebrate the Fourth of July this year.

The foundation organizes and coordinates the annual Northville Independence Day Parade, one of the largest in the state, and this year chose Cheers for Team USA! Celebrating the 2016 Summer Olympics as the parade theme. To promote the celebration of Olympic athletes, the parade committee is hoping to include past Olympic competitors in the more than 100 parade entries.

Former or current Olympic, Paralympics or Special Olympic athletes who have competed in any sport during the summer or winter games in any year are invited to participate in the parade this year, said Jessica Striegle, the director of the Northville Community Foundation.

The parade draws an estimated crowd of between 10,000 and 20,000 to the streets of downtown Northville for what is described as a real Norman Rockwell celebration of the holiday. The parade annually includes floats of all descriptions, walkers, marchers, bands, equestrians, vintage and antique automobiles, local businesses, political leaders and many celebrities and team mascots.

> We begin planning for it the day after the parade and work the entire year to keep it fresh and make improvements.

Wayne - Westland

Collected water delivered to Flint center

The small mountain of cases and huge stack of gallon containers of water donated by Westland residents were delivered to beleaguered residents of Flint last Saturday.

In January, Mayor William Wild asked Westland residents to help as part of his Compassionate City Initiative. The response, he said, was nearly overwhelming.

"The response from the community was truly humbling," commented Wild. "In a short period of time, residents donated more than 2,500 cases and 800 gallons of water at Westland City Hall."

The donations came from Westland employees, businesses, civic groups and religious organizations, along with local residents.

While the collection was exceptionally successful, it did create a dilemma: How to get the water to Flint residents.

The United Auto Workers (UAW) and the Westland Jaycees stepped up and members volunteered to load and deliver the water to the Hands of Love City of Refuge Center in Flint, a distribution center for bottled water in Flint.

"Local 900 UAW has been working with Hands of Love City of Refuge Center in Flint on our own collection efforts," commented Westland Councilman Bill Johnson, chair of the UAW.

"When we heard Mayor Wild was looking for a place to deliver the water the city collected, we thought it would be a great fit."

The Jaycees also offered their help almost immediately.

"The Jaycees continue to stay committed to helping the citizens of Flint during this domestic water crisis," commented Jim Hart, chairman of the Westland Area Jaycees. "We are happy to work alongside the City of Westland and UAW Local 900 in this effort. We hope to have several chapters involved in this effort from across the state, including the Westland Area Jaycees and the Burton Area Chapter."

"I would like to thank everyone for their amazing support in these collection efforts and a special thank you to the UAW Local 900 and the Westland Area Jaycees for helping to move this sizable contribution," Wild said.

"Westland has, once again, proven to be Michigan's most compassionate city."

Tai Chi classes offered by Wayne Senior Services

Is it ever too late to begin martial arts lessons?

Not if the marital art under consideration is Tai Chi, often described as meditation in motion. The mind-body practice which originated in China is considered by many to have value in treating or preventing several health problems

Tai Chi is a low-impact, slow-motion exercise performed without pause through a series of motions named for animal actions - for example, "white crane spreads its wings" or martial arts moves, such as "box both ears."

Participants move, breathe deeply and naturally, and focus their attention on bodily sensations. Tai Chi differs from other types of exercise in several respects. The movements are usually circular and never forced, the muscles are relaxed rather than tensed, the joints are not fully extended or bent, and connective tissues are not stretched. Tai Chi can be easily adapted for anyone, from the most fit to people confined to wheelchairs or recovering from surgery, according to Harvard Women's Health Watch

Some studies have shown that Tai Chi can help lower blood pressure and lead to a drop in cholesterol levels, noted WebMD.

An eight-week series of beginner Tai Chi classes will be offered through City of Wayne, The Senior Alliance and The Older MiChiganians Act at HYPE Recreation Center beginning at 10 a.m. May 3. Intermediary and Advanced classes will begin at 11 a.m. and continue from May 3 through June 21. The cost for either of the eight-week series of classes is $52.

For more information or to register for the classes, contact the Wayne Senior Services office at (734) 721-7460.

HYPE Recreation Center is located at 4635 Howe Road at the corner of Annapolis in Wayne.

Benefit set for businessmen

It has been one year since John and Bill VerHines, owners of GRAMCO Furniture Restoration on Michigan Avenue in Wayne were both critically injured in a traffic accident caused by a young drunk driver.

Both men suffered traumatic brain injuries on April 29, 2015. Their injuries require intense therapy and medical attention which means a never-ending financial need. Because of uncooperative insurance carriers, the family is facing a severe financial crisis.

To defray some of the mounting expenses, the Restoring VerHines' Legacy Spaghetti Fundraiser is planned from 6-8 p.m. April 29 at the First United Methodist Church, 3 Town Square, across from the Wayne Post Office.

Meals, which include all-you-can-eat spaghetti, garlic bread and salad, can be purchased for $10 for adults and $5 for children younger than 6. Gluten-free dinner options will be available and there will also be a bake sale.

Every dollar donated will help support the family including paying for monthly rent and utilities, medical appointments and therapies not covered by insurance, a spokesman said in a prepared statement.

The fundraiser is being supported by the Taking Action for Friends, Family and Youth (TAFFY) Foundation, a 501c3, nonprofit organization, that strives to improve the quality of life for Michigan families burdened with hardship. TAFFY carries out this mission by providing financial assistance and hope to those struggling for a myriad of reasons.

2 charged with arson

Police have arrested and charged two youths with arson in the April 6 fire at the former bakery building at the Eloise hospital property in Westland.

Trevor Bauer, 18, of Wayne, is facing charges of third-degree arson and possession of burglary tools. A 16-year-old Westland youth was also charged in the incident but his name is being withheld due to his age.

The bakery building was a total loss and when firefighters arrived on the scene at about 2 p.m. they observed flames already at the roof of the building. Fire investigators said it appeared the blaze started on an upper floor and were hindered in their attempts to extinguish the blaze. The bakery building was constructed in 1905 and shut down in 1960.

During his arraignment, a not-guilty pleas was entered for Bauer and he was given a $10,000.10 percent bond. His preliminary court hearing is set for April 21.

INKSTER - PLYMOUTH

Inkster police chief promotes Scout program

Inkster Police Chief William Riley is looking for a few recruits.

Not, however, for the police department, but rather for a new Scouting program he would like to bring back to the community.

Riley said that his membership in the Boy Scouts of American during his youth helped positively shape his childhood and was integral to his success with youth when he served as police chief in Selma, ALA, prior to accepting his current position in Inkster.

Riley said that he is asking residents to attend the recruitment fail for Scouting programs planned for 6 tonight at the Dozier Recreation Complex, 2025 Middlebelt Road in Inkster.

Riley has been laying the foundation to bring back the Scouting program to Inkster for the past six months. He said he believes the program can help reduce the rising tension between the police department and the community it serves by engaging youth in the impressionable years.

> Riley has been laying the foundation to bring back the Scouting program to Inkster for the past six months.

He said Scouting builds self-confidence, academic and leadership skills and helps prepare youth for adulthood.

There is no cost for the recruitment fair which include Justin Williams, director field service for Michigan Crossroads Council.

More information about Scouting can be found at michiganscounting.org.

Philharmonic performs special anniversary concert

The Michigan Philharmonic will celebrating its 70th season with a special concert at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, April 16. With a nod to the past, the concert will take place at Salem Auditorium where the orchestra performed for more than 20 years as the Plymouth Symphony.

In 1945, the symphony consisted of 10 players and performed in an old barn west of Plymouth. During the next decade, under director Wayne Dunlap, the Plymouth Symphony grew and became the largest community orchestra in the state while at the same time representing the smallest community to have a local orchestra.

In 1999 when the post of music director and conductor was open, the Plymouth Symphony members opted to reach beyond local borders and conduct a national search for a new leader.

At that time, Nan Washburn was making a name for herself and women conductors in California where she was serving as artistic director and conductor of the West Hollywood Orchestra, music director of Orchestra Sonoma and the Camellia Symphony. Looking to bring her programming ideas to the Midwest, along with a focus on youth music education, Washburn came to the Plymouth Symphony and has been at the helm ever since.

Now in her 17th season as music director and conductor of the Michigan Philharmonic as well as the Michigan Philharmonic Youth Orchestra, Washburn has won numerous awards and led the Michigan group to a second place finish in the National American Prize for Professional Orchestras.

The concert theme for the Michigan Philharmonic Birthday Bash is a movie music spectacular featuring movie scores from such films as Vertigo, Back to the Future and Schindler's List in addition to the full score Symphonic Dances from West Side Story. Featured composer Laura Karpman's haunting theme from the HBO series, Taken as well as the Pure Michigan theme song from Cider House Rules, are also on the program. Other special guests include the Plymouth-Canton Educational Park choirs, under the direction of Jennifer Neumann performing Dry Your Tears, Afrika from Amistad. Jack Goggin, host of Film Classics on WRCJ Radio will be the emcee for the concert.

According Beth Stewart, executive director of the Michigan Philharmonic, "This is a special anniversary concert and we are excited to invite everyone to celebrate this significant milestone with the Michigan Phil and enjoy the great music of the movies."

For tickets and information, call the Michigan Philharmonic office (734)451-2112 or online - www.michiganphil.org.
